The funeral of Mrs. Benjamin Franklin, who died Sunday night, took place from the Bambridge-Street Baptist church at 3 o'clock yesterday afterneon. There was quite a good congregation of friends of the family of the deceased present to attest the esteem in which she was held. In the absence of the pastor Rev. Thomas E. Reynolds conducted the funeral services. The speaker did not take any text, but delivered a highly eulogistic address on the life of deceased, and urged those present to follow her as she had folowed Christ. The pall-bearers were Messrs, George Blanton, H. J. Nunnally, Joe Blanton, James E. Davidson, F. C. D. Farmer, and - Abbott. The interment took place at Hollywood

The many correspondents who have interested themselves in relieving the starving people of this island, and to whose communications the columns of the Freeman have been thrown open for the past few months, have all been careful to point out that in the absence of timely relief there would certainly be starvation and consequent pestilence and death. It becomes my painful who is an old man, will go to the peniduty to announce that this terrible forecast is being daily verified. Since Christmas I have attended more sick calls in Achill than I had to attend during my previous three years' residence in the parish. This is true to the letter. On Sunday last, in the village of Docega, one of the wretchedest spots this day on earth, I visited sixteen houses filled with the sick-two, three, and four down in some, and many who ought to be in bed were striving to attend to the wants of those who were only just a little worse than themselves. It was a long and weary duty to administer the sacrament of extreme unction to all who required it. I cannot alone bear testimony to the truth of all your correspondents have said about the squalid poverty of this village, but I can say that whatever difference now exists between their descriptions and the actual fact is attributable to this-

I always believed that the gentlemen who did the artistic business for the illustrated papers in times of Indian famine overdid matters a trifle. But the condition of the MacAncela idiots for the last fortnight has shed on my mind a flood of light as to what the truth can be in a season of starvation. A HORRIBLE TRAGEDY.

A Youth of Seventeen Belleved to Have Murdered His Parents and Brother and Stater. [By telegraph to the Dispatch.]

KANSAS CITY, Mo., March 9 .- A dispatch to the Times from Osage City, Kan., says: J. W. Sells and wife, son Walter, aged nineteen, and daughter Ira, aged fourteen, were murdered some time Sunday night or early Monday morning, and there is hardly a doubt that the murderer is William Sells, aged seventeen, a son and brother of the murdered people. This boy gave the alarm to the neighbors early Monday morning, and said the family had been attacked by two strangers, whom he described. Suspicion was directed to the boy from his heartless manner, and his underclothing was found to be saturated with blood and bore evidences of an attempt to remove the stains. The murders were committed with a hatchet and butcher-knife while the victime slept. They were all dreadfully mangled. Plenty of money and portable valuables were found in the house, and nothing
